Widener Terrace

Named for Joseph E. Widener, a Philadelphia capitalist, art connoisseur and race horse breeder. He helped popularize horse racing in South Florida and commissioned one of Maurice Fatio's finest works, in Palmetto, in 1930. Situated on over 6 acres, this 42-room ocean-to-lake Italian Renaissance-style estate was the perfect retreat to showcase his vast collection of art and entertain Palm Beach society. He later donated his collections to the National Gallery of Art in Washington D.C.
