Movie Night in the Greatroom

One day, Horton the elephant hears a cry for help coming from a speck of dust. Even though he can't see anyone on the speck, he decides to help it. As it turns out, the speck of dust is home to the Whos, who live in their city of Whoville. Horton agrees to help protect the Whos and their home, but this gives him nothing but torment from his neighbors, who refuse to believe that anything could survive on the speck. Still, Horton stands by the motto that,

"After all, a person is a person, no matter how small."

Thursday, August 14th

The History of Olympia

In 1923, popular architects and friends Maurice Fatio and William Treanor were hired to design Olympia Beach, a resort to be built in Florida. It was to be an enormous complex, centered by a Spanish-style hotel designed to look like a monastery. During his trips to Florida from New York, Fatio decided to open an office in Palm Beach, which continued to thrive in spite of the devastating collapse of the Florida land boom and the Olympia Beach project in 1925. Olympia today is a lasting tribute to the Golden Age of architecture and a "souvenir" left by Fatio himself.

Olympia is much like Fatio's philosophy, as remembered by Fatio's children Marguerite and Guillaume Fatio.

"A forward journey,
sustained by relentless optimism
and an indefatigable energy, generous and loving,
directed by joy and beauty and happiness to his family and friends"

Please look forward to more history on Fatio, Olympia and names of Villages and Roadways within Olympia in upcoming issues of The Torch.
